Create a potted herb garden

The best way to enjoy herbs is to have them growing right outside the kitchen where you can harvest them just when you need them.

Here's how:

1. Start by choosing a suitable pot. Yates new Tuscan Edge self-watering pots look great in every style of landscape and their clever moisture reservoir means the plants won't dry out (even if you forget to water!). Fill the pot with Yates Thrive Premium potting mix. It contains slow release fertiliser that will feed your plants for up to nine months.
2. Sow Yates herb seeds into the potting mix. Chives, parsley, rocket, oregano, thyme and mint can all be started at this time of year. Add a bay tree or some upright-growing rosemary in the middle of the pot.
3. Feed the young herbs with Thrive Soluble Plant Food every two weeks to make sure they grow extra strong and healthy.
